. This is a reading intensive course. Reading will take the form of texts listed on this syllabus as well as independent reading in the course of your research for your research essay. This course seeks to develop you as thoughtful, patient, imaginative, and critical readers capable of identifying multiple possible readings, examining assumptions, and ready to interpret different kinds of arguments.

. This course begins from the premise that reading and writing are deeply intertwined; because writing cements for the first transfer of the course writing cements for the first transfer of the course writing cements for the first transfer of the course writing are topics of power and resistance.

2. Critical Literatuj [2xBleX ()-2. B lel

begun in the course and preparing all of urs
